

HEROES WON'T FAIL U. S., SAYS MOORE

Congressman, at Gettysburg, Certain Veterans Will Prove Staunch in Crisis

LAUDS STATE'S SOLDIERS

Gettysburg, Sept. 1.—Congressman Moore, of Philadelphia, was the speaker this afternoon at the welcome home celebration on the historic battlefield for Adams county veterans of the world war.

The congressman paid tribute to the veterans and summed up the problems of reconstruction facing them. He predicted that Pennsylvania's soldiers would rise to the responsibilities of peace as creditably as they had in war, and added that when they are applicants for the same position in public service and each is qualified, preference should be given the man who donned the uniform.

The congressman addressed his talk to the soldiers of Adams county and said, in part:

"Pennsylvania, which, in part, you represented in the great world war, is proud, as the nation is, of the service rendered by you in foreign fields. The state whose banner you hold aloft in the most stupendous war of history is no mean state. Keystones of the arch of the union founded by your revolutionary forefathers at Independence Hall, which union was preserved by the soldiers of Abraham Lincoln in the struggle which reached its high-water mark at Gettysburg more than a half century ago, Pennsylvania, second in population only to the great empire state, is richer in natural resources and diversity of industries than any other state.

The Many Ravages of War

"To these imposing monuments of Pennsylvania's greatness we point, first, that the world may know the extent of the sacrifice that was made by you of Adams county and by all the soldiers of our commonwealth who fought for the peace of Europe as well as for America; and second, to have you know that important work, the work of reconstruction, the work of readjustment following the ravages and excruciations of war, awaits consideration at your hands.

"The ravages of war are many. There are the widows and the orphans of heroes; there are the maimed and wounded men who were once as blithe as the best of us.

"The reactions of war are the debts we have to pay, the loans we pile up against ourselves and future generations. There are the demagogues and shonky profiteers who prey upon the people while the soldiers are fighting in the trenches.

"But war has its compensations. It creates a longing for peace and an appreciation of the home. A few years ago when the blue and the gray assembled at Gettysburg to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of that great battle we witnessed a reddish of hearts that had been taught to hate and of hands that had been taught to fight.

"It was an inspiring sight, dispelling the spirit of hatred and instilling that of love. At Bloody Angle yonder I had the honor of presenting to their ancient foes of the Confederacy the flag of the Philadelphia Brigade, those gallant veterans of the Union who resisted and turned back the memorable charge of Pickett's brigade.

"We saw the boys in blue fraternize with the boys in gray. They were talking of peace, of a country reunited, of a country that was beginning to understand itself. They wanted no more war. They wanted to see the country free, which they had fought, a heritage of light and happiness, a heritage of opportunity for their successors.

Problems for Veterans to Face

"So it is and will be with you who have come back from France. You have seen war, you know what makes war and you know what war makes. You are young, you are vigorous; some of you have come back maimed. You are veterans, even as the boys of twenty-two years who fought the Civil War were veterans.

"Let us, then, understand some of the problems you must face.

"The President has not yet officially announced that the war with Germany is at an end, but most of the 2,000,000 sturdy young Americans who went to France have returned. Like you of Adams county they are back upon their native heath. They find the country heavily in debt for the maintenance of the war and the fulfillment of our obligations to foreign countries.

"The four years of war had reached a stage where something had to be done to save the Allies and that quickly. The appearance of the American troops—young fellows fresh from the farm and the workshop—was an inspiration. You were not to dally but to fight, and when the opportunity came you fought. Thousands of your comrades laid down their lives, but you won that great world war and yours is the glory.

"You come home now to find your countrymen paying the bills, paying them to France, paying them to England, paying them to those who were fortunate enough to buy your country's bonds.

"You come home to find that you must contribute also in taxes and in meeting the highest cost of living known to civilized man. These are among the problems you must face. That you will face them and face them unflinchingly goes without saying.

"In the Congress of the United States many plans are being considered for the restoration of normal conditions. At the same time Congress is beset by many demands that smack of privilege and the continuance of war conditions in time of peace. You must watch these things, but act upon information and without prejudice.

Profiteers Still Abroad

"The demagogue and the profiteer are abroad and you must see that they do not deceive you. Our common aim should be to hold to our ancient traditions and get down to a twice basic speed in order that you, who fought our battles, may have a square deal in readjustment.

"I am for a reasonable preparedness for war at all times. We can meet that problem by adopting some thoroughly logical system of training. But I would take the uniform away from the supernumerary and reduce the army maintenance cost at once. If you fought against one thing on the other side of the water you fought against Prussianism, which was an expression of military autocracy. We do not want a military aristocracy in the United States. It is un-American, it is too expensive and it is a menace to democracy as we understand it here.

"We should reduce taxation and the high cost of living by increased productivity and the diversification of our industries. The farm is waiting for the soldier. He is being solicited now to go upon the semiarid and reclaimed lands in the South and West. He should look over available Pennsylvania land first. He can find plenty of available land in eastern states like Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey without wasting his time and substance in the sagebrush.

Land in State for Soldiers

"We could take care of all the returning soldiers on tillable and naturally irrigated lands along the Atlantic seaboard and have some to spare. But apart from the farm there is much work to be done—big work that the world has come to know as constructive work. Our railroads have been worked so hard as to be at the breaking point. We want to rehabilitate such railroads as we have and build new ones.

"In Pennsylvania and elsewhere along the Atlantic coast we are building new highways. We must get more money for that kind of work and spend more. Our old Pennsylvania canals that brought coal cheaply to the consumer have been dismantled. We should have new ones. We are getting them along the coast and should encourage them in Pennsylvania.

"I call attention to these things to remind you that the door of opportunity is open to you in your own great state. For years some of us have been preaching preparedness in the United States for commerce as well as war. We knew that France had good roads—better than we have in the United States. We knew England, France and Germany had canals to supplement the railroads. We knew all these things and yet we hesitated about expenditures on this account.

"We built the Panama canal and then made it free to other nations on equal terms with ourselves. We sat by while England and Germany entrenched themselves in South American trade. When the war broke out we contributed our ships while other nations held their trade routes and compelled us to trade abroad almost on their terms.

"We loaned them vast sums of money—an aggregate of $10,000,000,000—which is a tax against every man and woman in the United States. Our soldiers in France helped to reconstruct bridges there and build roads. Has not the time now come for us to do something for ourselves?

"I submit to you that we have constructive work to do here if we will but follow the Biblical injunction and 'provide for our own household.'

JOINS MOORE RANKS

Mrs. Blankenburg Makes Contribution to Campaign Fund

Mrs. Rudolph Blankenburg, widow of Mayor Blankenburg, today joined the ranks of the women's committee working for the nomination of Congressman Moore for Mayor.

The arrival of Mrs. Blankenburg at the Moore campaign headquarters was greeted with cheers. Mrs. Blankenburg, greeted by Murdock Kendrick, chairman of the Moore campaign committee, said she had called to make a cash contribution for the campaign.

"I am not in a position to make a large contribution because my income is not in keeping with the high cost of living," said Mrs. Blankenburg in turning over her contribution to Mrs. Joseph P. Mumford, chairman of the women's committee.

Representative Tells Workers He Will Ask Liberal Appropriation

A pledge to exert every effort to procure a liberal appropriation for the maintenance of the Philadelphia Navy Yard was made by Representative Vare to a committee shipyard workers.

The delegation from League Island, representing every branch of workers, called upon Representative Vare at his cottage in Chelsea, to formally ask his assistance in bringing pressure to bear upon Congress in behalf of the Philadelphia yard.

7 A. M. TOMORROW IS NEW 'ZERO' HOUR

Moore Service Men's Committee Issues 'General Order' to Get Out Big Registration

WANT 100,000 ENROLLMENT

General Order No. 2 from the Moore service men's committee today directed attention to the fact that 7 a. m. tomorrow is the "zero" hour for the second registration day.

The Moore campaign committee also issued a call for another heavy registration.

The order of the service men's committee, signed by Captain E. J. Prepper, chairman, in part follows:

"General public thanks you for the gallant way in which you went 'over the top' last Tuesday to attack the 'contractor parasites.' The first objective proved easy, as we all knew it would.

"Tuesday, September 2, we must go over for the second objective. The zero hour for attack is 7 a. m. and the creeping barrage of voters will be laid down from this hour until 10 at night. The second objective is another big registration, for a big registration shows that the 'good citizens' are in the attack.

"Remember the 'Vare controlled draft boards.'

"Remember the battle of the Fifth ward.

"Every man of you who registers puts a spike in the guns of the enemy."

Assessors are required by law to sit at the division polling places tomorrow to put the names of voters on the assessment lists.

On the first registration day, last Tuesday, more than 180,000 voters enrolled. It was the biggest registration for a first day in the history of the city.

Independent leaders hope to see 100,000 voters register tomorrow. Unless there is a heavy registration the primary election will go to the organization by default, they say.

Politicians on both sides expect to cut their holiday short and return to the city tonight to be in readiness to get out the voters tomorrow.

WOMEN TO RALLY VOTERS

Committee for Moore Will Canvass Men Still Unregistered

Armed with lists of voters who did not register last Tuesday, the women's committee of the Moore campaign committee will take up the campaign tomorrow in every ward and every division of the city and urge men to "register for Moore and good government." Registration day is tomorrow.

"We have been carrying on an energetic follow-up campaign since last registration day," said Mrs. Mary O'Reilly-Rea, head of the women's division in Moore headquarters at the Liberty Building. "From the assessors' lists we copied the names of the men who did not register last Tuesday. We are not going to let them wait, if we can help it, for the final registration day. We are going to get them out tomorrow."

The telephone will be used in rallying the voters, but the women will also make a house-to-house canvass during registration hours. The women's committee working for Moore now numbers 100. Mrs. Joseph P. Mumford is acting chairman, Mrs. Cornelius Stevenson, Mrs. Margolis and Mrs. H. Prentiss Nichols are vice chairmen.

LABOR PAPER DENIES MEN OPPOSE MOORE

Publication Answers Vore Statement and Says Unionists Favor Congressman

Assertions of Vore Lieutenants that organized labor will oppose Congressman Moore for the Republican nomination for Mayor because of his so-called "anti-labor" record in Washington are vigorously denied by the Progressive Labor World, a labor journal of the city.

In the issue of Thursday, August 28, the labor journal asserts that despite Vore attacks Congressman Moore is steadily gaining strength among laboring men.

With reference to the attacks upon Mr. Moore the labor journal says: "Nothing in Philadelphia boss politics has ever equaled the desperate means employed to attack the labor record of J. Hampton Moore, the independent candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor."

SCORES VARE'S DEFENDER

MacLaughlin Says Gaffney Had Lapse of Memory in Coal Case

Joseph S. MacLaughlin, director of supplies, in a statement issued yesterday, said the statement of Joseph P. Gaffney, chairman of Councils finance committee, was at fault when the latter said Senator Vare had not caused the introduction of an ordinance to pay $3000 to Charles Carr, a coal dealer.

Gaffney, in reply to charges made by the director, had said that the only coal bill ordinance of the kind which had been presented to Councils had been drawn up under the direction of Director MacLaughlin himself.

Both the MacLaughlin and Gaffney statements arose out of charges made by the director that Senator Vare had attempted to have the city pay Carr $3000 as a "moral claim" for coal which the director asserted was not up to specifications.

800,000 X Imagination

Are you one who pities poets or praises financiers for their imagination? How much imagination have you and what is your particular "slant"?

Suppose an authority were to tell you that because of the war the United States is already 800,000 dwelling houses behind normal building.

What do the 1,000,000 new homes, soon to be built, mean to you?

Do you calculate the amount of building material or do you think of the labor problem or of the house-furnishings after completion, or do you think of the human beings who will people these houses?

Do you think in terms of financing the building or furnishing the paint and varnish?

Is it bathtubs or bath towels—is it of piazzas or pianos that you think?

Whatever you imagine for these new homes and for their new owners—the best of everything is none too good.

Just now, there are 1,000,000 families planning new homes—they are trying to decide what's best—they are eager to be shown. Help them decide—advertise.
